

Malcolm Drew
11/5/75

What an action-packed adventure!

Excellent vocabulary. Malcolm, you just have to obey dull grammar rules. Then I would like to have an autographed copy of your first best-seller.

Once upon a time, there was a frog that ate a magic mushroom. The frog had seen a beetle on the mushroom and by mistake, ate the whole thing. After that he felt alright, in fact it was a week before he felt strong. Whenever he hopped, he felt like he was flying. One time while he was swimming, he was pulled under the water by a fish and was carried to a small cave under the water. Then he swam into it. Almost immediately he was grabbed by a big toad that had ten fingers on each hand, and ten on his feet. The frog was then carried through a long corridor into a great big palace. The floor was made of gold and the walls were made of silver. There were stained glass windows that were made of diamond, emerald, quartz, and rubies. There was a huge gold throne in the middle of the room and on the throne sat a frog with two heads. The frog with two heads was the king. The frog said, "you will die because you ate the magic mushroom." "I didn't mean to" said the frog. "Heard! Summon the executioner." "Yes, your highness." Down the executioner came with his sharpest axe. It was so sharp that it split a diamond. He was ready to slit off the head of the frog. The frog jumped up and ran into the long tunnel and into the water. Many of the fish tried to push him back, but he kicked them out of his way. The minute he got on dry land he ran into his lair, which was under ground. He hid there for five minutes until he saw the guard with ten tails on each foot and hand chase after him. He ran out the doorway and jumped onto a lily pad and tried to float away but the guard jumped onto another one, and the chase began.

Do you want to make this into a book?

The guard had brought along a gun that shot little clumps of mud, and he began firing at the frog.
One ball of mud hit the frog's boat and it began to sink. So ~~the frog~~ ^{the little frog} jumped off and ~~climbed~~ ^{climbed} onto another one.
On this one there was a pile of stones that were left there by some of his friends, and he began ~~concealing~~ ^{hunching} his ~~guard~~ ^{guard}, but by then the one guard summoned his whole army, which contained ~~five thousand~~ ^{five thousand} frogs. The frog padded his boat down the lake toward the river. The rapids were high that day, and the frog had an idea. He would put his boat upside down on a twig. Then he would escape onto ~~land~~ bank and hide until they passed, and about a hundred yards away there was a whirlpool and they would get ~~caught~~ ^{caught} and drown. ~~So the~~ ^{So the} frog ran to shore and watched as the whole army ~~disappeared~~ ^{disappeared} in the whirlpool.
and the kingdom ~~under~~ ^{under} the lake was never seen again.